

ABSTRACT

By managing and providing information such as know-how from a product using registration of the product as a trigger, it is possible to rapidly and effectively provide information on a project product. As a result, for example, it is possible to provide timely service utilizing this information.